

Do They Believe You?
K.D.Cashion – 1982

1. With a body like an angel,
You say you want to be my friend.
You arrange discreet rendezvous
At secluded country inns.
You tell me you're only interested in my mind.
You tell me you're a good girl.
You're just trying to be kind.
But should I believe you?
Do you believe it's true?
2. You tread through conversation
Appearing open and naive.
You skip past all the old cliches.
You say you never will deceive.
You say that intellectualism is your goal,
And the details of metaphysics is what you'd like to know.
But should I believe you?
Do you believe it's true?

3. To their wives, you are a sister;
Earth Mother to mankind.
You just want to talk with their husbands.
(Over warm bottles of wine.)
Perhaps I'm being unfair,
And your motives and reasons are pure.
Perhaps I'm old and cynical;
My skepticism is past cure.
But should I believe you?
Do you believe it's true?

refrain – I don't want to believe you,
You are just too good to be true.
